NICHOLAS CAN SPARK ARSENAL EXPLOSION... CHARLIE'S

CHARLIE will have the fans flooding back to Highbury.

It's difficult to say how he will fit into the side because we don't know where he is going to play... or who he will be alongside. I could be the man to stand down!

I'd love to play up front with him but I realise that competition for places is going to be really tough.

Charlie is a big-name signing and that can only be a good thing for Arsenal. The supporters will enjoy coming along to see him.

I haven't seen much of him — only snippets on television — but his sensational scoring record of over 50 goals in a season speaks for itself.

Despite what he's already achieved with Scotland and Celtic, Gunners' fans shouldn't expect too much from him in the early days. It will take him time to settle.

He still has a lot to learn — after all he is only 21 — but I'm sure it won't be long before he is producing his Celtic form for us.

Arsenal haven't enjoyed much success of late but the signing of Charlie — and other players the club hope to get — could be the boost we need.

Last season was disappointing but you have to forget that. Our sights are set high again and we're looking for a trophy next season!

Right: Kenny Sansom — "A fantastic boost for the club."

A FANTASTIC BOOST FOR US

says Kenny Sansom

CHARLIE signing for Arsenal is a fantastic boost for the club.

The fact that he chose us above Liverpool and Manchester United is great news. It has created a lot of interest around the place and I'm sure the fans will be flocking back to Highbury. That's just what we need.

He's proved what he is capable of over the last few seasons and I hope he can reproduce that sort of form for 'The Gunners'.

Goalscoring was a problem for us last season but Charlie could be the man to put that right. His partnership with Tony Woodcock excites me.

We haven't done too well over the last couple of years and to lose two cup semi-finals last season — both against Manchester United — was very disappointing.

But everyone at the club is confident that our fortunes will change next season and we know that if we play to our full potential, there is no reason why we can't win something.

I've only ever played against Charlie once and I don't believe his performance for Scotland against England can be a yardstick. He was under a lot of pressure at the time.

Obviously Charlie is going to have to work very hard if he is to become a success in England.

His record North of the border has been very impressive, but there's going to be much more pressure on him to do well in the future.

If he does well in the first ten games for us and can score a few goals then the crowd will get behind him and he could go from strength to strength.

On the other hand, if he doesn't, the going could get tough. But I'm confident he can cope with the pressure and do a good job for us.

THE signing of Scottish 'hot shot' Charlie Nicholas could point the way for a revival in fortunes of once-mighty Arsenal.

They left the seventies as probably the most successful club side after Liverpool.

But so far, the eighties have produced little more than frustration for the followers of one of the world's most respected football institutions.

After completing the coveted League and FA Cup double in 1970-71, they reached the Final of the FA Cup four more times in the next ten years, including three successive appearances.

They also won the UEFA Cup in 1970 and were League runners-up to Liverpool in 1972-73.

And since winning the Championship in 1971, they have only twice been outside the First Division's top ten in 13 seasons.

But the eighties opened with a shock 1-0 defeat by West Ham in the FA Cup Final and a tear-jerking European Cup Winners' Cup defeat by Valencia on penalties in the same year.

It's four years since the club won a major trophy and Arsenal's mid-table position last season was their lowest League placing for seven years — leaving them without a place in Europe for only the second time in five seasons.

So the Arsenal fans are left eagerly waiting to cheer the club's first major success since the 1979 FA Cup triumph over Manchester United.

The signing of Charlie Nicholas — from under the noses of mighty Liverpool and Manchester United — provides them with tremendous hope, however, as 'Match' discovered from the Scot's new team-mates...

GUNSLINGERS!

By Graham Rix

CHARLIE can be the new darling of the Highbury fans.

The capture of the young 'Tartan Terror' can provide the ammunition as Arsenal go gunning for glory again.

The Arsenal public are desperate for success after a mediocre time. They needed the arrival of a big-money star to idolise.

Charlie Nicholas fits that bill to perfection, and if he can provide just a glimmer of his magical scoring touch in North London, then he'll be guaranteed 'Superstar' acclaim.

It would be totally naive of me at this stage to declare that Arsenal are now Championship contenders.

Potential

It may need more than the signing of one quality player to elevate us to that category, but there is no denying that capturing a striker of Charlie's potential must be a major step in the right direction in terms of winning things again.

For a club of Arsenal's reputation and standing in British soccer, it's essential that we got back among the honours again, and the signing of the hottest property to emerge from Scotland since Kenny Dalglish is a sure sign that we mean business.

It's a considerable boost for the club to snatch the former Celtic 'Golden Boy' from under the noses of Liverpool and Manchester United, who both made overtures in his direction.

There is no question he'll be under less pressure at Arsenal. United and Liverpool are already successful without Charlie, and any fall from grace would place extra pressure on the 21-year-old.

With Arsenal, he has everything to gain and nothing to lose with the club stumbling through a lean period, even if you include two cup semi-finals last season.

If he can adapt quickly to First Division life and get the confidence of a few goals under his belt, then I'm certain he'll have no problems.

The cynics are already claiming that Arsenal have taken a big gamble in splashing out a £700,000-plus fee for a youngster with only one full season of Scottish Premier football behind him.

I don't agree. Any striker who can score 52 goals in a season and demand a regular place in the Scotland attack must have something to offer, even in the First Division which is regarded as the hardest competition in the world.

It's difficult to form an accurate assessment of a player you have never met or played against, so I can only go on the facts.

Those facts say 52 goals last season and if he could manage just half that number for Arsenal next season, then I don't think he would get any complaints.

I think he would be the first to admit that he didn't do himself justice before he was substituted against England at Wembley last month.

There is no question he had other matters on his mind, but the way he scored that goal against Switzerland on his debut for Scotland last season smacked of class in every sense of the word.

Alert

From what I have managed to glean from occasional TV appearances, Charlie is quick and alert and has the ability to turn defenders in tight situations.

It's difficult to predict how he would combine with the likes of Tony Woodcock and Alan Sunderland, but I would imagine that manager Terry Neill would encourage him to adopt the same role he had at Celtic.

I'm certainly looking forward to playing behind Charlie and I'm hoping that I can provide him with the kind of service he needs to upset First Division defences.

I'm sure he'll have no problems on the field so long as he can settle down amid the bright lights of London.

Charlie is a player with considerable commercial potential and those activities can bring pressure.

But by living in a big place like London, he'll probably find himself less harassed by the general public than if he had signed for Liverpool or Manchester United.

It all depends on his character and how he handles pressure. On that score, only time will tell how he fits into his new lifestyle hundreds of miles away from his native Glasgow.

IAN BANKS CONFESSES 'I NEEDED A KICK UP THE BACKSIDE'

Ian Banks — chased by Nottingham Forest, Q.P.R. and Derby before he signed for Leicester.

LEICESTER'S new signing Ian Banks confessed this week: "I needed a kick up the backside towards the end of my stay at Barnsley."

Ian, who joined the First Division newcomers in a £100,000 deal last month, admits: "Perhaps it was my own fault and I needed a jolt, but I didn't think I was getting anywhere at Oakwell. I had been there seven years and felt stale."

The 22-year-old admits he had a frustrating time last season and he says: "The manager couldn't make up his mind where to play me. I played all over the place in the middle of the park."

In the end, Ian had a 'clear the air' talk with manager Norman Hunter and it was agreed to let him go on the transfer list. He says: "The manager was very fair. He said he didn't want to stand in my way if I wanted a move."

Five clubs, including Nottingham Forest, QPR and Derby showed interest, but the first firm cash offer came from Gordon Milne's newly-promoted Leicester.

Ian says: "I didn't talk to any other clubs because Leicester suited me just fine. They are a First Division outfit and the facilities impressed me a great deal."

"Leicester impressed me as a very good footballing side last season and I'm sure they will do well in the First Division next term."

"With the likes of Gary Lineker, Ian Wilson and Kevin McDonald, they have too many good players to struggle. They've also got the added advantage of having played in the First Division before."

Ian travels into the unknown after playing in the other three divisions of the Football League, but he says: "Although I don't know what to expect, I'm confident I can make the switch. I might even find that I enjoy more time on the ball."

The Doncaster-born player made more than 150 League appearances for Barnsley and established a reputation as a goalscoring midfielder.

Gunner hit by backfire!

ENGLAND'S Graham Rix was almost ruled out of Arsenal's recent tour of Indonesia after injuring his back on holiday in Italy.

It occurred during a training session with Italian First Division club Sampdoria while he was staying with his former Highbury colleague Liam Brady.

"When I went to Italy, Liam suggested that I took along my training kit. Arsenal manager Terry Neill was in full agreement, particularly as I had missed the last few weeks of the season with a hamstring injury," explains Graham.

"But it almost backfired on the club. I fell awkwardly and jarred my back and at one stage I thought I might have to pull out of the trip to the Far East."

As it turned out, Graham missed the opening game — a 3-0 win over an Indonesian select side — but managed a brief run-out as substitute in the 5-0 victory over the national team.

He also played in the final match which ended in a 2-0 defeat at the hands of the country's League champions.

"During that twenty minute substitute's appearance, whatever I had done to my back must have jerked back into place because I never had any more trouble," adds Graham.

"It was a good tour although the overpowering heat during the final match was a major contributory factor behind our defeat."

"The champions were a useful side, but the players in Indonesia are more enthusiastic than anything else."

Cut-price 'Robbo'

DERBY manager Peter Taylor won his first major battle with his old sparring partner Brian Clough when a Football League tribunal decided on a fee of £135,000 for John Robertson's (above) move from Nottingham Forest to the Baseball Ground.

Derby had originally offered £65,000 and Forest had asked for £250,000.

The same tribunal ordered Portsmouth to pay £190,000 for former Coventry star Mark Hateley. 'Pompey' had offered £50,000 and the 'Sky Blues' were asking £300,000.

■ THE future of Scottish Second Division club East Stirling hangs in the balance after Falkirk District Council refused to approve the club's proposed move from Firs Park to Grangemouth Stadium.

The club had hoped to raise the cash by selling Firs Park to the council and then moving house to nearby Grangemouth, but the council, who own the stadium, vetoed the proposal.

They claim that a move would further stretch the limited facilities of the stadium which also stages greyhound racing and speedway.

And that could mark the beginning of the end for East Stirling after 102 years in the game.

■ ENGLAND became the first team to get through to the finals of the first-ever UEFA Women's Championship.

They won their first five matches in a group that included Scotland and the two Ireland teams.

Their final match is at home to Eire in September.

Heading the other groups — at our time of going to Press — were Sweden, Italy and Norway.

'I'LL PLAY FOR NOTHING'

By Anthony Hawkswell

FORMER Derby star Steve Emery will play for nothing next season in a desperate bid to prove that he has fully recovered from two broken legs.

Steve will spend the first three months of the campaign at Hereford, where he started his League career, without receiving a penny in wages from the hard-up Fourth Division club.

And he admits: "It's make or break time for me. I've got to prove that I can still play League football. It's like being an apprentice — I am starting my career all over again."

Steve last kicked a ball in League football at Rotherham in February last year. Since then, he says: "I've gone through sheer hell."

His career was shattered after breaking his right leg in a collision with Rotherham's midfield hard man Gerry Gow just three minutes into the game at Millmoor.

The full-back looked to be making a steady recovery from the injury every player dreads when disaster struck yet again for luckless Steve.

He explains: "The plaster had been off for two weeks and I was walking up and down the terracing at the Baseball Ground to strengthen my legs one day when one of my crutches slipped and I fell to the ground in a big heap."

If that wasn't enough, Steve suffered further complications when the tendons and ligaments in his ankle seized up while his leg was in plaster.

He says: "It was so frustrating because there was absolutely nothing I could do about it. After the first month, I found myself throwing crockery against the wall at home in sheer despair."

"The doctors told me it was a bad break but there was never any suggestion that it would force me to retire. Although I must admit, in my darker moments, I considered that horrible possibility."

The player's agony was completed early last season when Peter Taylor was named as the new Derby manager. Steve had his contract terminated at the Baseball Ground.

"I was sick. Before I got injured, I'd been playing well for Derby and I thought he'd give me a chance to recover and show what I could do. He wasn't prepared to wait for me to get back to full fitness."

"At the time, I'd played a few games in the Derby reserves and things were going quite well," says Steve, who joined the Midlands club from Hereford for £100,000 in September 1979 and made 78 League appearances for

Emery goes on trial

'The Rams'.

Just before the transfer deadline in March, Steve's former boss at Hereford and Derby, Colin Addison, offered him a lifeline at Newport. Steve says: "He gave me two months' trial at Somerton Park."

"Even then, things didn't work out as I would have liked. I didn't play a game in the first team and Newport just missed out on promotion to the Second Division."

"I'm sure that the Welsh club would have kept me on if they had gone up, but they couldn't afford to with the prospect of yet another season in the Third Division."

Although he received offers to play in Hong Kong and New Zealand, Steve wasn't approached by any English clubs until he got a call from John Newman — another former boss at Derby — to go to Edgar Street.

"I had made one or two tentative inquiries about playing abroad and I suppose I'd have gone if no-one had come in for me. But my heart was set on staying in the Football League."

"Even though Hereford finished bottom of the Fourth Division last season, I was delighted to hear from them. It's great to be going back there."

But Steve knows that he faces the biggest battle of his career in the coming months. "It's not going to be easy," he says.

"I know that I still have the skill to play at the highest level. I've got to prove I have the fitness to match it."

That's why the 27-year-old has agreed to play without being paid. He says: "The club are taking a risk. After all, I haven't played in the Football League for 18 months."

"I'm only 27, however, and feel I have at least another four or five years of League football left in me. I am just grateful to Hereford for giving me the chance."

Despite all the knocks he has taken in his career over the last 18 months, Steve hasn't given up hope of playing at the highest level again. He says: "If I play well at Hereford, some First Division manager on the look-out for an experienced full-back might spot me."

Steve signed apprentice forms at Hereford when he left school and played for the club when they reached the dizzy heights of the Second Division. Since then, their fortunes have taken a drastic nosedive.

He says: "It's very sad to see them in the position they are now, but I've got every confidence that the new manager, John Newman, can rebuild them."

HUNKY Huddle . . . gorgeous Glenn! He's the one for the girls.

Some he inspires to poetry. Others are just left weak at the knees.

Either way, he's a beautiful head and shoulders above the rest according to a 'Match Weekly' survey.

We asked you to write in and tell us who you would most like to spend 90 minutes with . . . and hundreds of love-struck girls swooned at the chance.

Only Aston Villa's dazzling blond striker Gary Shaw seriously threatened to dislodge Glenn's 'Dishiest Player' crown.

But at the end of the day, it was England midfield genius Glenn, with his dashing good looks, cheeky grin and lovely legs who stole your hearts.

"What more could any woman wish for in a man? Gorgeous legs, rippling thighs, hunky chest, good looks, sparkling eyes . . . and he's the best footballer in England," writes Ruth Ingram of Stamford, Lincs.

Glenn's enough to make any girl go crackers over football according to Sally Tucker of Coventry who says: "He has the loveliest, boyish grin I have even seen, and a gorgeous pair of long, long legs."

Pam Postles of Ramsden Heath, Essex, told us it would be impossible to vote for anyone else: "Handsome face, terrific legs and the body in between is not bad either. I could go on for hours!"

SEXY

Glenn's "sexy bum" appeals to Ria Rychlinski of Woolwich and his legs got to Pat Nelson of Highgate Hill and Gillian Graham, the latter of whom wrote: "He has to be the dishiest. Who else has legs that reach up to such gorgeous eyes? (Apart from my boyfriend of course!)"

"So dreamy!" That's how 18-year-old Amanda Doyle of Manchester describes Glenn.

Adds Amanda: "There's so much I would do and say if I spent 90 minutes with Glenn. I think I'd be happy just to spend 45 minutes looking into his gorgeous eyes. I'd never wash my hand if he touched it!"

Michaela Varney of Stony Stratford compares the sparkle in Glenn's eyes to the sun glistening on the ocean but adds: "His best — and sexiest — feature is his long muscly legs and his smile is so cute and cheeky."

Lisa Jones of Bletchley loves the way Glenn wears his shirt outside his shorts "like a mini-nightie" and Helen Peacock of Rathenraw admits: "Spending 90 minutes with Glenn would be a dream come true."

Tracy Chapman of Brompton? Well she's just plain in love . . . "All I can say is — I love Glenn Huddle!"

"Just reading his column in 'Match' makes my heart miss a beat and the sound of his voice makes my legs turn to jelly."

"When he smiles, his eyes crinkle up and it makes me love him even more and his legs send shivers up my spine."

"All I think about during the week is gorgeous Glenn."

SWOON GIRLS, IT'S . . . HEART-THROB

Says the Dagenham reader: "He is really gorgeous, with a beautifully tanned, muscular body."

"And when he shows us that lovely, cheeky smile after scoring a goal, I lose interest in the match and just concentrate on Gary's dishy, desirable looks."

It's Gary's voice that appeals to Michelle Dolman of Uttoxeter: "I love his Brummie accent. He's handsome, hunky and his legs are beautiful. I'm his number one fan."

Carol Draper (14) of Upper Belvedere says Gary's cute smile is one of his best points because "it lights up his whole face."

And he's the "best by a mile" according to Julie Lewis of West Bromwich who adds: "His blue eyes, blond hair and good looks would make any girl go weak at the knees."

"Gary Shaw never fails to make my heart flutter with his immaculate good looks and magnetic personality," writes Kim Hirons of Hengrove.

Eileen McGuckin (21) of Wolverhampton waited two hours to meet Gary once but says: "It was well worth it. He's even better looking close up (if that's possible) and he's really nice to talk to."

"I spend most of the match watching Gary. I love everything about him."

NEW Arsenal signing Charlie Nicholas is the darling of 20-year-old Suzanne Farrant of Barking who writes:

"His slim, dark features make him stand out from any crowd — combined with the great pride he always takes in his appearance and his lovely Scottish accent, it makes him my idol."

Charlie has everything a girl dreams of according to Diane Muspratt of Poole: "He has lovely eyes, gorgeous legs and a terrific face."

"JOHNNY WARK of Ipswich is terrific. His lovely, dark wavy hair looks great when it's wet . . . and those muscly legs (swoon)!"

"I was lucky enough to be photographed with him at our Supporters Club 'Player of the Year' awards and I still haven't quite recovered."

"You can keep your Glenn Huddles and Gary Shaws." — Christine Barber (19), Ipswich.

"GARY MABBUTT is good looking with kind considerate eyes and has really nice, long, legs. I look forward to seeing them in action next season." — Michelle Freeman, Sawbridgeworth.

"STEVE COPPELL is my number one rating. He's the one to set my heart palpitating. "With hunky legs and a lovely physique,

He's the one the others must beat.

"With looks and skill he's on the ball. Hence he's the one for whom I fall"

— Sharon Prior, Halsemere.

"I LIKE MICKEY THOMAS

because he is so small. I like small players better than tall ones and when I see him on a football pitch my heart turns over." — Vicky (Stoke fan).

"SEXY bum, lovely hairy chest, beautiful smile and blue eyes that twinkle. Whenever I see him he makes me feel wonderful. That's JOHN GIDMAN of Manchester United of course." — Jenny Holloway, Thornton Cleveleys.

*Yes Glenn's the player of my dreams, the dishiest for me,

SHAKING STEVEN

EVERTON
STEP IN TO EASE
TREVOR'S
TRANSFER WORRIES

LIKE a good Mounty, Everton manager Howard Kendall finally got his man when he ended a one-and-a-half-year hunt for midfielder Trevor Steven.

But, unlike the famed Canadian Mounted Police, his tracking wasn't done on the treacherous slopes of the Rockies... it was just down the road at Burnley.

Says £350,000 teenager Trevor: "I first heard of Everton's interest when I was 17. It was in all the local papers that Howard was watching me.

"Burnley agreed to inform him if they made me available and Howard acted quickly when new manager John Bond was prepared to let me go."

Even though the 19-year-old still had another year of his contract to run, he was keen to leave the club following their relegation to the Third Division last season.

"I didn't want to play there again and felt a move would be in the best interests of my career," says Trevor, who joined the club straight from school.

But his immediate hopes of a transfer were frustrated by the fact that Burnley were managerless and he had to wait until a new man had been installed in the hot-seat.

He says: "It was a very worrying time for me. I wondered if I'd ever get away because it took the club such a long time to appoint a new manager."

But as soon as the flamboyant former Norwich and Manchester City boss breezed into Turf Moor, Trevor's future was immediately mapped out. He says: "The first time I heard from him was when he told me the two clubs had agreed terms.

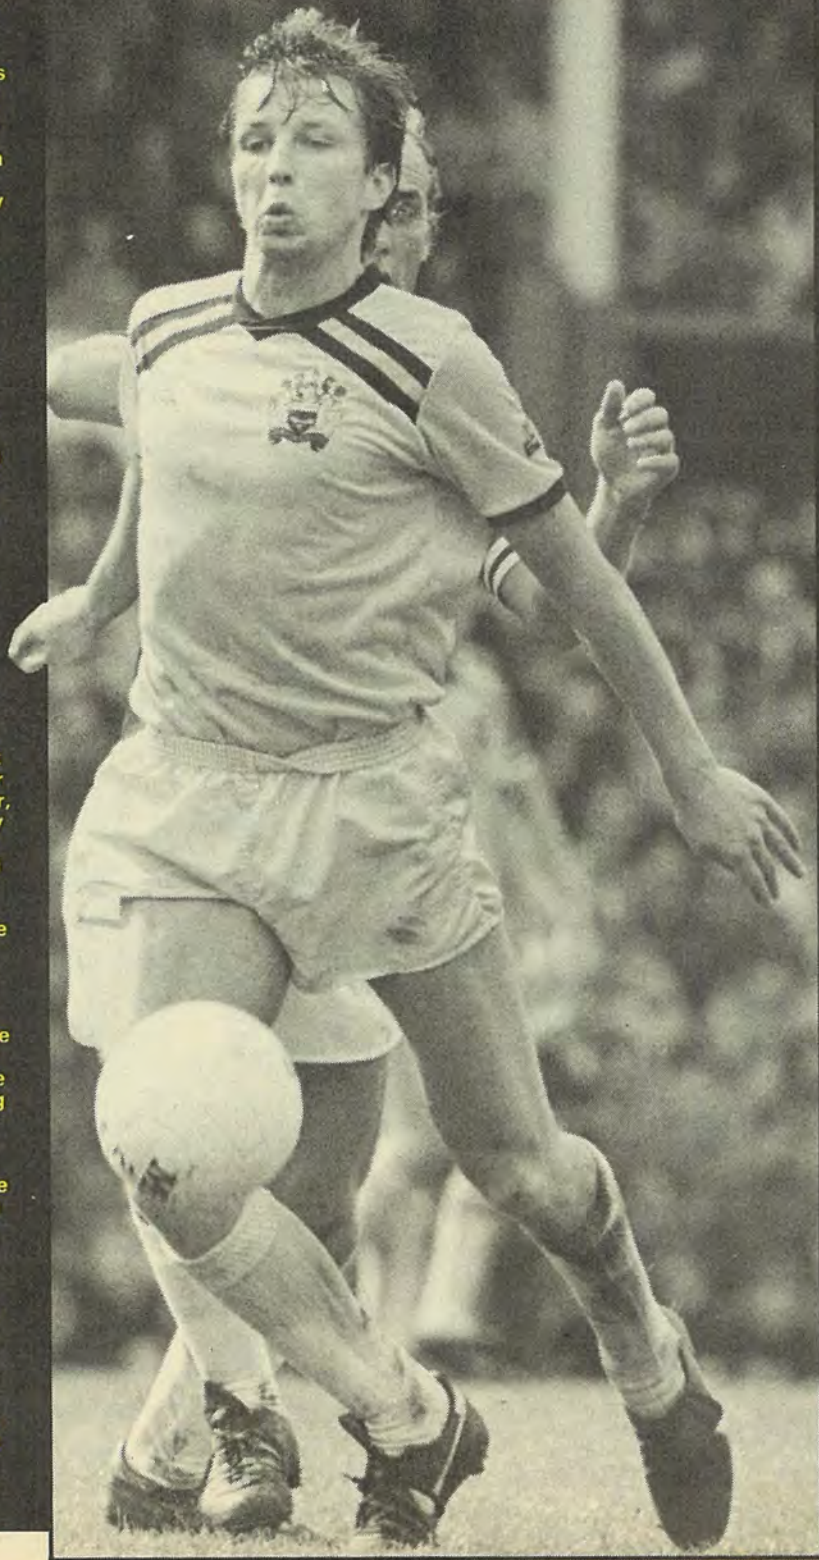

"John needs money to buy the players he believes can get Burnley back into the Second Division. I was a marketable asset.

"I was very impressed with the set-up at Everton. Burnley have one of the best stadiums outside the First Division, but everything at Goodison Park is on a much bigger scale."

Trevor is seen by many as a replacement for midfielder Steve McMahon, who moved to Aston Villa earlier in the close season, but Trevor says: "It would be unfair to compare us.

"The only thing we have in common is that I shall probably be wearing the same shirt number. We are two different types of player."

Trevor, who has signed a four-year contract at Everton, is hoping that he can celebrate his first season with the club by helping them win a place in Europe.

He says: "The club have just missed out for the last two seasons and the manager feels that we could achieve that if the players developed consistency in their play.

"Form at Goodison Park was good last season and I'm sure that if we can pick up wins away from home, we'll be up there at the top of the table."

As a big-money signing, Trevor accepts that a lot will be expected of him from the Everton fans and he says: "I'm going to have to get used to the pressure.

"But that will be considerably eased if I can play well in the early games and gain confidence."

The Berwick-born player is leaving a club which plummeted into the Third Division last season despite reaching the FA Cup Quarter-Finals and the last four in the Milk Cup.

He says: "As far as the League was concerned it was a disastrous season for Burnley. Although the cup runs affected us, we can't use it as an excuse for relegation.

"After playing against the likes of Liverpool, Tottenham and Coventry, we went into some Second Division games deflated.

We lost our killer instinct and made mistakes at vital times.

"A club like Burnley shouldn't be in the Third Division and I hope that the new management can steer them back."

Trevor is unsure what effect the razzmatazz style of leadership of John Bond will have on the normally quiet and subdued Lancashire mill town of Burnley.

He says: "The club will undergo great changes because the manager is always in the headlines and on television. The club will certainly be in the limelight.

"We'll have to wait and see if that and the new influx of players will be good for the club," adds Trevor, who first broke into the Burnley side two years ago.

When he was a schoolboy, Trevor was trailed by such top clubs as Sunderland, Glasgow Rangers and Newcastle, but he chose homespun Burnley because of their great reputation for producing talent.

He says: "I couldn't have been happier anywhere else and I've got a great deal to be grateful to the club for. I thoroughly enjoyed my stay there."

EXILE come-home, Peter Barnes is back with his old club Leeds — convinced his ten-month spell in Spain has set him back on the road to soccer stardom.

As he eagerly awaits the start of a new season, he told 'Match': "The Elland Road fans will see the old Peter Barnes.

"I went through a bad time but I'm over that now and looking forward to a new season more than I have done for a long time."

Peter joined Seville club Real Betis at the beginning of last season when he became depressed with life at Leeds.

The club had just been relegated to the Second Division, Peter's form suffered as a result and, to make things worse, he lost his place in the England squad.

But now he believes his fortunes will change.

He says: "I feel a completely different person. My spell with Real Betis has been a shot in the arm."

The 26-year-old winger had the option of staying with the Spanish First Division club for a further two years but claims the lifestyle didn't suit him.

He says: "On the playing side, things were going really well for me towards the end of the season, but myself and my family couldn't settle down over there."

"The weather was too hot and the lifestyle didn't suit us. I was away from my family much more than I was in England."

"But despite those problems, I enjoyed my spell over there and I certainly have no regrets about going to Spain."

"Ever since I was a teenager and starting out on my career, I always wanted to play abroad and I feel I'm a better player for the experience."

Peter admits that he was unhappy during his last spell at Elland Road and needed a move to boost his flagging career.

"We had a disappointing season which ended with relegation to the Second Division," he says.

"The club was in a state of turmoil and the whole side lacked confidence. As a result, my form suffered and I was very depressed."

"Before that, I had always played in successful sides. I had never been in a team which struggled as Leeds did that season."

"What was more disappointing was that I also lost my place in the England squad and missed out on the trip to Spain for the World Cup Finals."

"I needed a change and, when Real Betis came in for me, it seemed that a move abroad would be the best thing."

"I was very impressed with the club and, when they offered me the option of returning to England after a year if I didn't settle in, I had no hesitation in signing."

Peter joined the Spanish club towards the end of last July but struggled to command a place in the side for the first few months.

"The coach was very defensive-minded and I couldn't get in the team until he was sacked around Christmas," he recalls.

"When the new coach came along he had different ideas and introduced an attacking style of play which obviously suited me more."

"Soon after he took over I was playing regularly and enjoying my football. I started to score a few goals and the team was picking up points... things couldn't have been better."

"But I decided to come back to England because the family found it difficult to settle down and I didn't think we could have stayed there for another two years."

WHY I'D QUIT ENGLAND

My skills would be more appreciated abroad, says PETER BARNES

Flashback to 'Match' February 13, 1982 when Peter Barnes first revealed he was considering a move abroad.

BARNES

Peter Barnes in flying action for England. Now he's out to add to his 22 caps.

Despite his short stay, Peter believes he has learned a lot. "I have learned how to cope with Continental defences and the man-to-man marking system and I think that will stand me in good stead," he says.

"I was playing well after Christmas and showed that I could do it against the best defences in the country, which naturally boosted my confidence.

"I scored two goals against Real Madrid and another one against Barcelona, so if I can do it against teams like that I'm sure I can reproduce that form in the English Second Division.

"My spell in Spain has helped me no end and I feel I'm getting back to my best and ready to regain my place in the England squad.

"It's over a year since I last played for England and I've really missed being involved with the squad.

Determined

"I had been part of the England set-up since I was a teenager at West Brom and I'm determined to start adding to my 22 caps."

Peter says that when he made the decision to return to England, two First Division clubs showed interest in him. He was still contracted to Leeds, however, and he says: "I turned them down because I was quite happy to go back to Leeds and see out the last year of my contract."

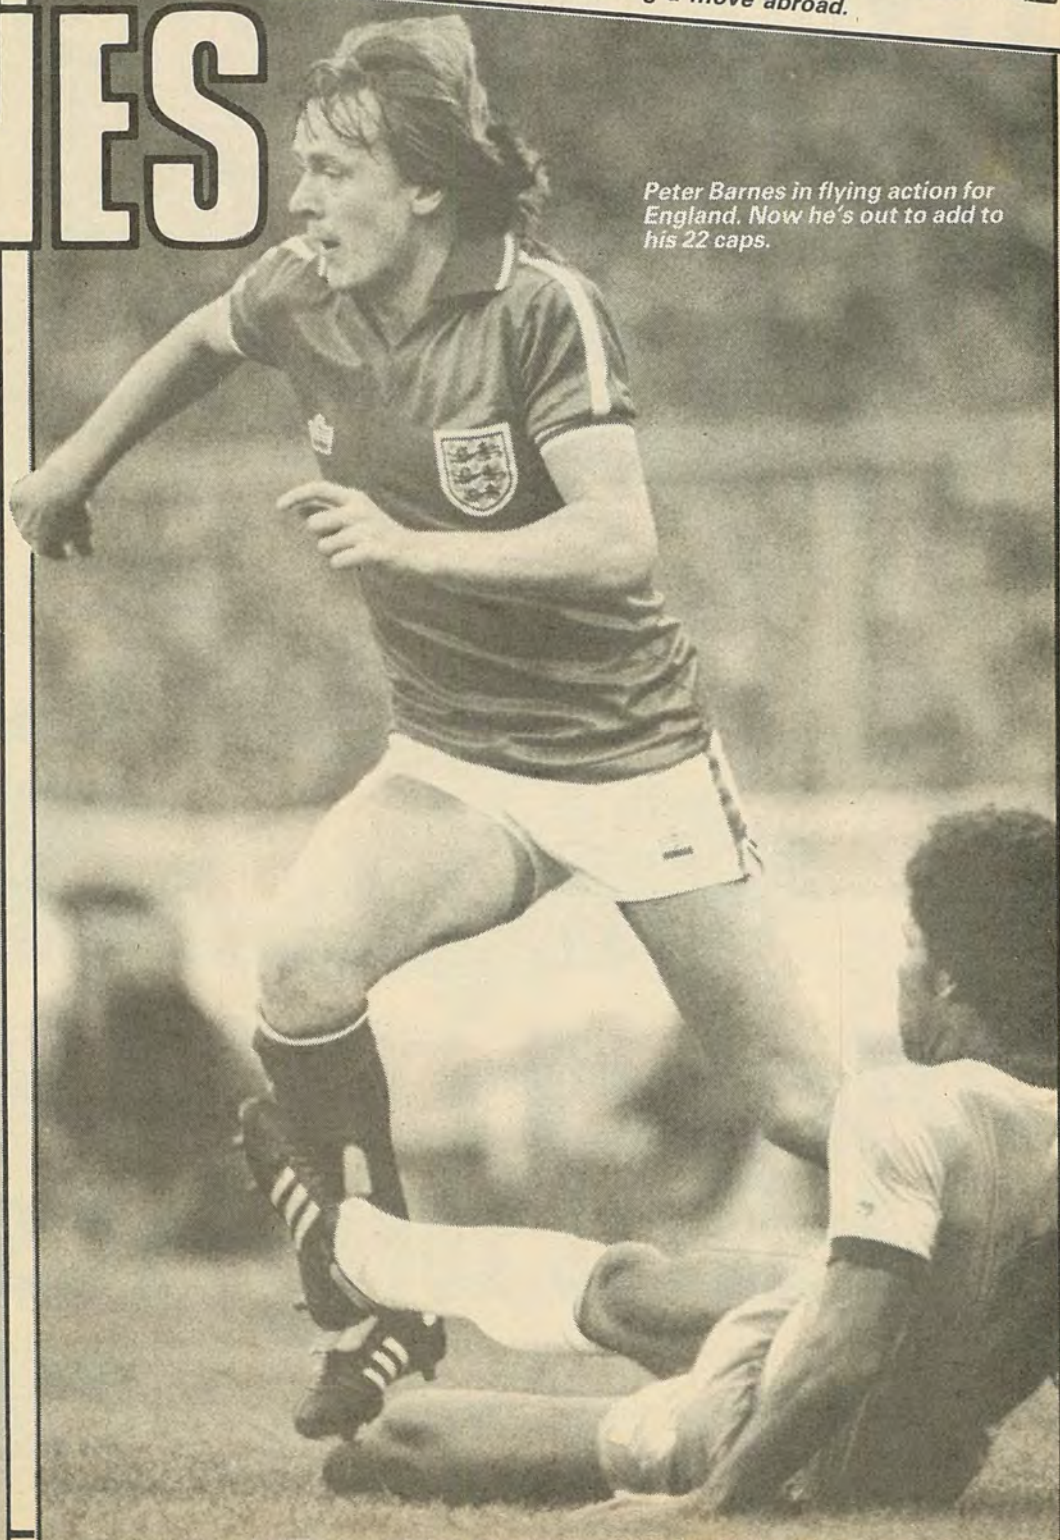

"The fact that Leeds are in the Second Division doesn't worry me one iota. I've never played outside the First Division and I'm looking forward to the challenge.

"The Second Division is more competitive than it has been for years, but hopefully I can help Leeds win promotion next season.

"The club has been through a bad spell, but Eddie Gray has got a good squad of players together and I think we can go on to better things.

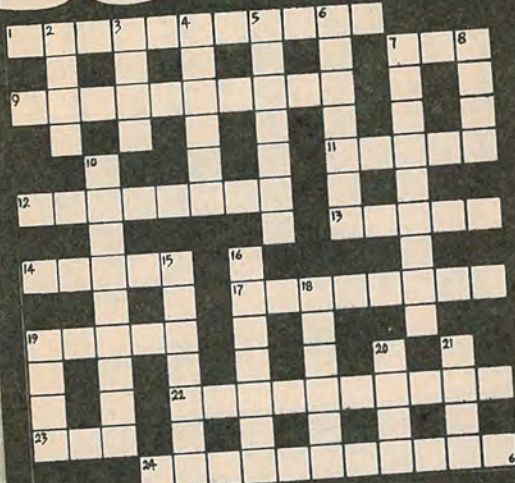

"It's not going to be easy with teams like Manchester City — my old club — Newcastle, Fulham and the rest, but we have got to fancy our chances of going up.

"On a personal note, I'm really looking forward to playing up front alongside new signing Andy Ritchie and Arthur Graham — two players I have always admired — and I think we can work well together."

O'KEEFE SEEKS RETURN TO THE BIG TIME

WIGAN'S Eamonn O'Keefe is hankering for the big time again after a dramatic return to international football with Eire following two "wasted years" fighting a FIFA ban.

The 28-year-old former Everton winger was cast into the international wilderness just days after making his Eire debut against Wales in February 1981 when FIFA discovered that he had played for the England non-League side three years earlier.

FIFA finally relented a few weeks ago and the Wigan top scorer made up for lost time by walking off with the trophy for being top scorer in an eight-nations Under-21 tournament in France last month.

His four goals came in one match against China, but much more valuable than the trophy was the way his confidence was boosted to such a level that he now feels ready to return to the First Division.

"Having played against top youngsters from Argentina, France and Russia — and remember that each country was allowed five over-age players — I think I showed that I still have plenty to offer in a higher grade of football.

"I matched most of them and bettered some and that made me sit up and think: 'If I can do it against some of the best players from other countries, then what's to stop me doing it again in the First Division?'"

"Eire boss Eion Hand was more than pleased with my performances and he indicated that I might be included in the senior squad for the friendly against Kuwait next month.

"Having played so well after such a long absence from the international scene, I've now got itchy feet.

"I never thought the day would come when the ban would be lifted but it has been two years wasted because my arguments haven't changed in that time," adds Eamonn, who quit the First Division to bolster Wigan's Division Four promotion drive two seasons ago.

"As it stood, I could have been the best player in Britain yet unable to represent any country.

"FIFA always maintained that you can't represent two different countries unless cleared by one of the countries concerned so it appears that the English FA told FIFA that the non-League side was nothing to do with them.

"But for that ban, however, I might have kept my place in the Eire squad and that could have tempted me to stay with Everton at the time instead of dropping down the divisions in search of regular first team football."

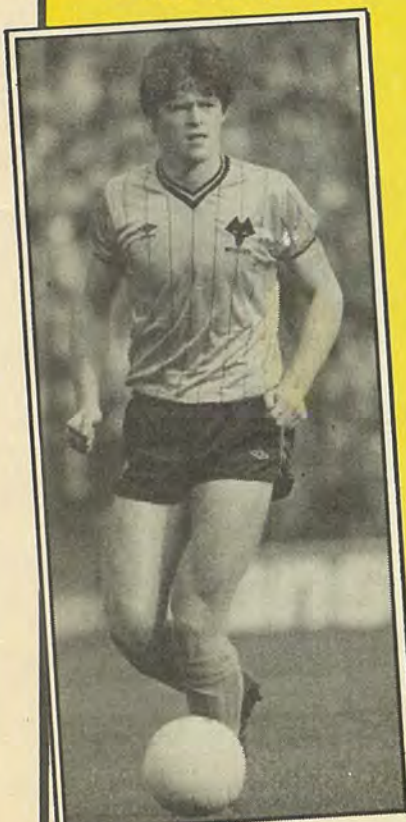

Eamonn played forty First Division games for Everton after joining them from non-League Mossley but felt he was being made some kind of scapegoat when Howard Kendall took over as manager.

"He bought in a lot of pricey players and so it became too easy for him to drop me, the non-League player made good. And when you had players like Alan Biley as a £300,000 substitute, the pressure became enormous when you were in the team.

"But moving to Wigan, the situation was reversed. I was their record signing at £60,000 and so the pressure of wondering whether I would be in the team was lifted."

Eamonn O'Keefe in First Division action during his days with Everton — now he's hankering for the big time again.

John Pender of Wolves — tremendous prospect for Eire.

But it seems unlikely that Eamonn, Wigan's top scorer with 18 goals last season, will be lining up with the hard-up club next season.

His name has already been linked with promoted Port Vale even though he still has two years of his contract to run.

"Wigan are in such financial straits that they are prepared to sell me and it looks as though I'll be moving on before the start of the season," says Eamonn.

"I've had talks with Port Vale boss John McGrath, but I don't think the clubs can agree a fee, so I've just got to keep waiting.

"I scored 18 goals last season despite missing ten games through injury and spending some time playing in midfield, so I didn't have a bad time even though I could have been happier at the club.

"I couldn't have done myself any harm in France so I hope there might be some reaction to my performances over there."

Apart from the 5-1 defeat of China, Eire drew 1-1 with France, and lost 1-0 to Argentina and Russia.

Several youngsters made their debuts, including Middlesbrough goalkeeper Kelham O'Hanlon and midfielder player Mick Kennedy, Fulham's Robert Wilson and Preston's John Kelly.

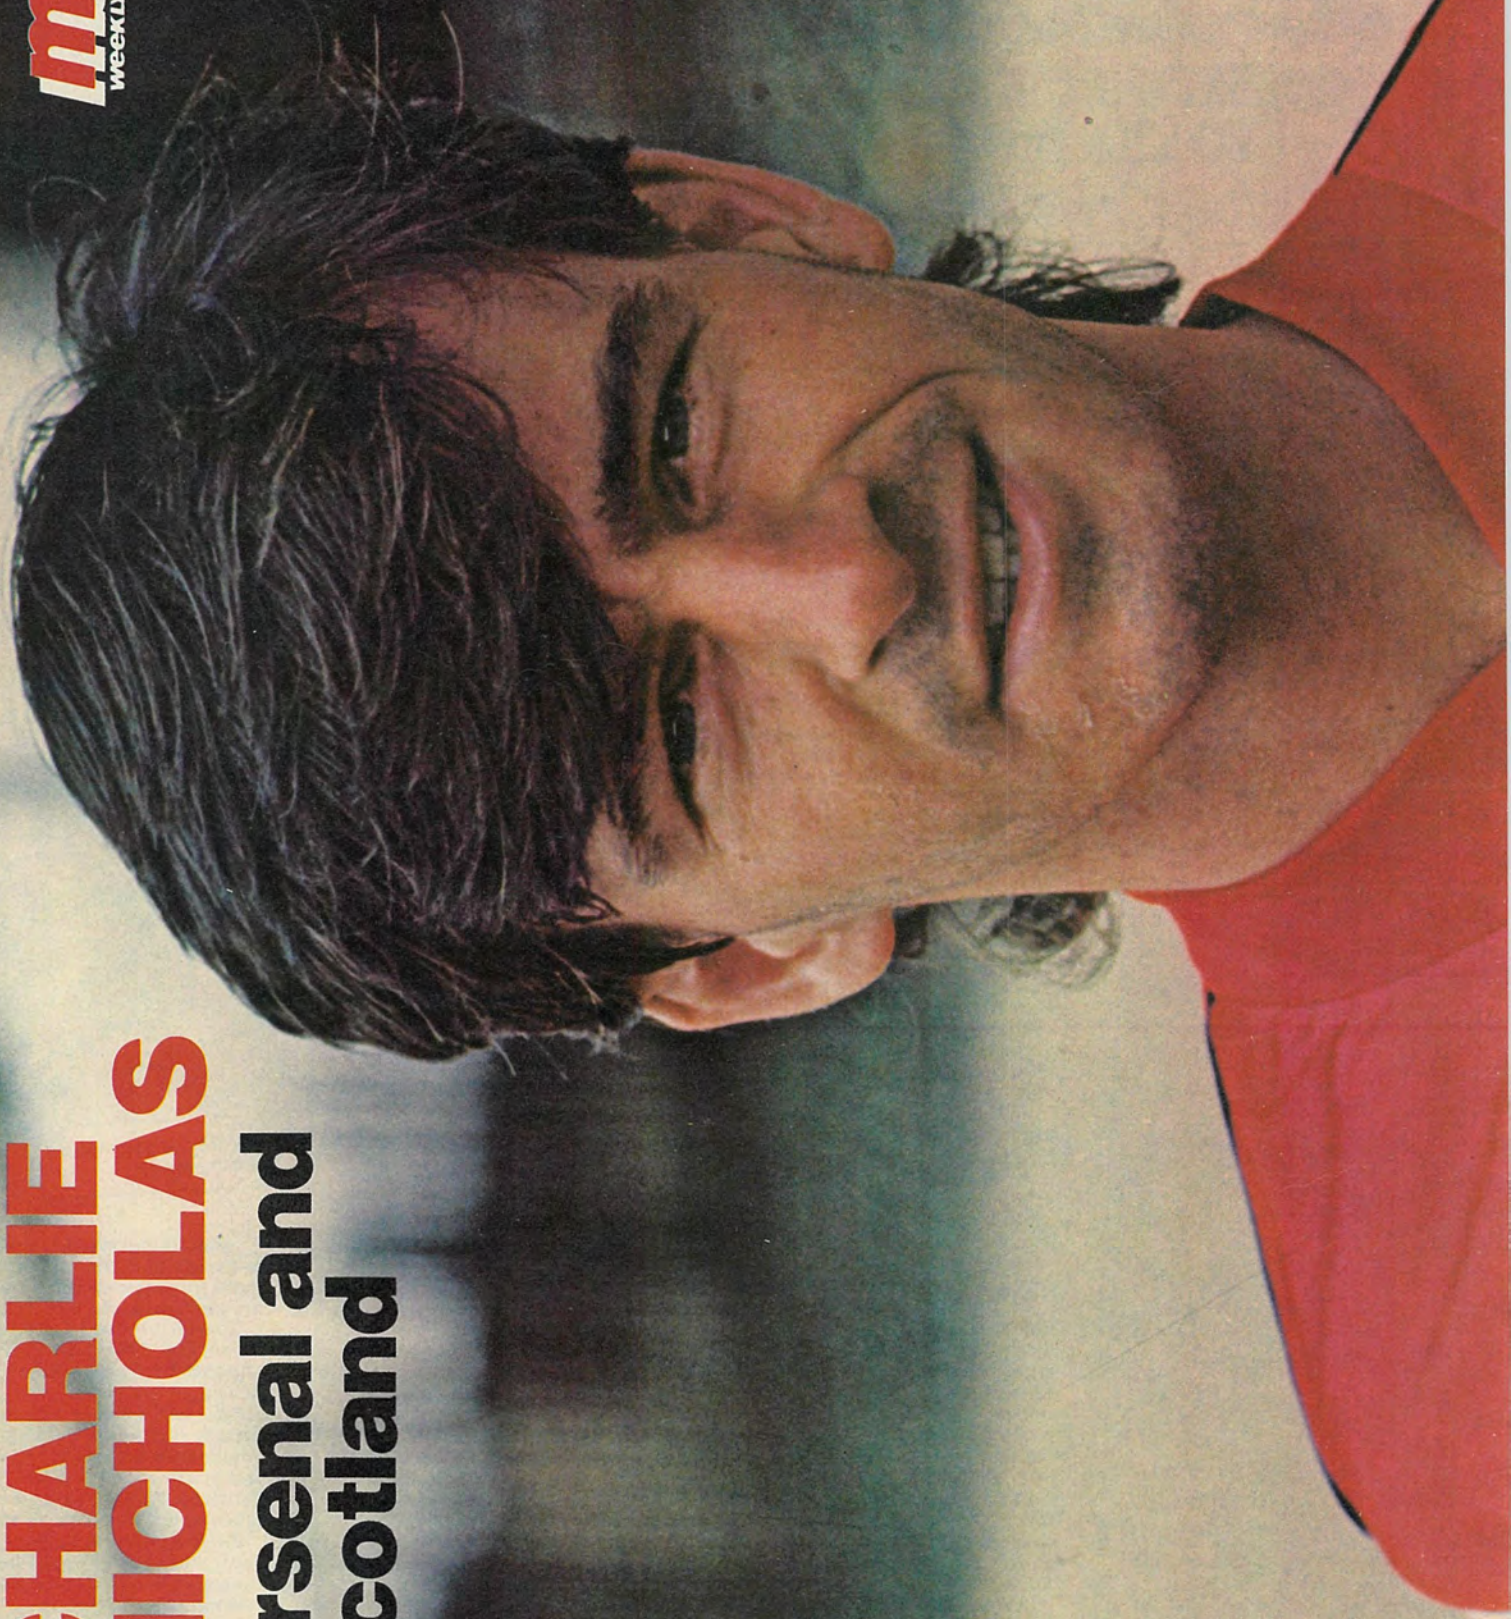

But the player who impressed Eamonn the most was Wolves central defender John Pender: "He had a tremendous tournament. He showed plenty of aggression and had the appetite for the game. He looks a very good prospect for the future."

No 10 Willie Miller v Alan Hansen

SCOTTISH international rivals Willie Miller and Alan Hansen come under analysis in 'Star View' this week . . . and the verdict comes from Scotland and Manchester City midfielder Asa Hartford, who has played alongside them both.

Asa Hartford says

ALAN Hansen is the best player in his position in the country and it is essential that every team has someone like him who can play the ball around at the back.

Out of Alan Hansen and Willie Miller, Alan is the better footballer, but Willie makes up for that with his determined and aggressive approach.

Marking and tackling are obviously very important considerations for defenders and this is where the Aberdeen skipper scores well.

That's his game. He gets stuck in where others fear to tread and relishes the physical aspect of the game. Alan, however, isn't an argy-bargy type of player.

The Liverpool star reads the game so well that instead of committing himself to the tackle, he prefers to intercept the ball before the danger occurs.

When it comes to heading the ball, both players are even. Willie may be smaller but he's very confident and competent in the air. Once again his fearless nature is a great bonus in this department.

Alan has great vision. He sees things early and that produces the goods for the midfielders and strikers. He also scores more goals than his counterpart North of the border because of his vision.

Both players have the ideal temperament for the game at the highest level and they've proved it at international level and in European competitions with their clubs.

They are very quiet on and off the pitch — Willie more so than Alan — and they can be relied upon completely. You know that if the going gets tough, they won't do anything stupid and get themselves sent off.

Once again there is barely anything to choose between the two internationals in the stamina department. Liverpool and Aberdeen had hectic seasons and yet the duo proved themselves very consistent performers. Willie played in two cup finals in a week.

Speed isn't necessarily the most renowned quality of a central defender, but neither Willie or Alan are slow. I've never seen them turned or beaten for pace.

As far as fitting into their respective teams is concerned, they are both ideal. Willie and Alex McLeish have played together for quite a few years and know each other inside out, while I regard the Hansen-Mark Lawrenson partnership as the best pairing in the First Division.

ALAN HANSEN: Age: 28. Clubs: Partick Thistle and Liverpool. Signed: Straight from school. International honours: 21 full caps. Debut: v Wales, 1979.

As a midfielder, I know only too well the advantage of having someone behind me who can play a bit and both Alan and Mark love to push forward at Liverpool.

When they go on a run, it releases someone in midfield and gives them an opportunity to get into a more forward position.

Although Willie does move up front, Alan is better known for his surging runs from defence and his close control. He has a very deceptive stride.

Alan is like a continental player. West

Germany's former World Cup winning skipper, Franz Beckenbauer, wasn't a tremendous tackler or marker, but he loved to go forward and set up chances.

That suits the Liverpool style just fine because they don't like their defenders to thump the ball forward at the earliest opportunity. They like a patient build-up and play the ball on the ground.

All in all, there's not much to choose between the two players and Scotland manager Jock Stein has a very tough job in deciding which player to put in his side.

CUT OUT AND KEEP

By Dave Smith

BRIGHTON FA Cup Final hero Gary Stevens this week looked forward to a career with Wembley specialists Spurs — convinced his new team can sweep all before them next season.

Following his £300,000 move from relegated Brighton, Gary told 'Match': "Spurs have the players to become the most successful side in the country next year.

"Last season was not too good for them but they still qualified for Europe. Next term they could easily overshadow the likes of Liverpool and Manchester United and collect some silverware."

Gary signed for the London club at the end of June, little more than a month after starring in Jimmy Melia's battling Brighton side in the Cup Final against Manchester United.

The 21-year-old defender was the toast of the South Coast when he popped up to score that vital equaliser in the dying minutes of the first Wembley thriller.

And his performance in the replay a few days later earned him the 'Man of the Match' award from television viewers.

"That has to be the high point of my career so far... despite the fact that we lost 4-0 in the replay," recalls Gary.

"Although we lost, every Brighton player and supporter enjoyed the occasion and made the most of the experience.

"Of course we were disappointed, especially as we were relegated to the Second Division as well. It wasn't until after the Final that we sat back and thought about playing in Division Two next season.

"I have to admit that the thought didn't appeal to me very much and so I was delighted when Spurs came in and offered me the chance to stay in the top flight.

"I'm pleased to have joined such a big club — they must be in the top four in the country at the moment — but at the same time I'm sorry to be leaving Brighton.

"I've been at the Goldstone Ground for five seasons now, ever since I left school, and I'm glad that I was able to leave the club on good terms.

"I have a lot to be grateful for and I will never forget them for helping me to launch my career."

Gary joined the 'Seagulls' when he was rejected by England boss Bobby Robson, who was then in charge of Ipswich.

He says: "At the time, Mr Robson already had two central defenders who he saw a future for. They were Russell Osman and Terry Butcher, who have since gone on to win international honours.

"In that respect, he was right to release me and keep those two players and I think it was probably the best thing for me, too.

"If I had stayed at Portman Road, the chances are that I would still be playing in the reserves, whereas for the past few seasons I've been playing in the First Division and now I have appeared in a Cup Final."

Gary made over 150 appearances for Brighton, but it wasn't until his last-but-one game in a blue shirt, in the FA Cup Final against United, that he really began to receive national acclaim.

After spending most of the season at full-back, Gary switched to the heart of the defence to take over the role of suspended captain Steve Foster and became an overnight hero.

"Now and again you have days when everything goes right for you. Fortunately the first game against United was one of those days," says Gary.

"Playing at Wembley in front of so many people was a marvellous experience and to score a goal — my first of the season — was something special."

Gary earned rave notices in the Press

GARY ON THE GLORY TRAIL

NEW SPUR SEEKS SUCCESS

following the Final and his performance sparked off interest among several top clubs.

"I heard rumours that one or two First Division clubs were interested in me, but Spurs were the only one to make an official approach," he says.

"My form in the Finals probably persuaded them to sign me although I have since learned they had been watching me for most of last season.

"I was very flattered by their interest and, after looking round the club and seeing the fabulous set-up, it wasn't a difficult decision for me to sign.

"My aim is to play for England and obviously playing for Spurs in the First Division is going to help me more than playing for Brighton in the Second," says Gary, who still had a year of his contract to run at the Goldstone Ground.

"I would have been happy to see out my contract but Spurs came in and made an offer for me which the club decided to accept and the opportunity was too good for me to turn down.

"For the last year, I've been engaged in talks with Brighton about a new contract, but we never sorted anything out. The club kept saying 'we'll do it next week' and next week never arrived.

"If we had been able to sort something out six months ago, I have no doubt that I would still be a Brighton player.

"There was never any dispute, we just never got round to it. I have always got on well with everyone at the club and we've parted very amicably."

Gary is looking forward to another season in the top flight while his former Brighton colleagues will be battling away in the Second Division.

But he realises that with such competition for places at White Hart Lane, he's going to have his work cut out to command a regular spot in the side.

"There are a lot of top class players at Spurs and I will have to fight for a place in the back four," he says.

"But that doesn't worry me and I think the fact that I will have to work hard should help improve my game.

"I believe the club has a very bright future and I hope to be able to win some trophies with Spurs during the next four years.

"I also hope that my former Brighton team-mates can bounce straight back into the First Division where they really belong."

Right: Gary Stevens — once rejected by current England manager Bobby Robson but now snapped up by Spurs.

TWO TO GO!

BLADES FAN CLOSE TO AMAZING FEAT...

ALAN Scholey's programme pursuit has brought him to the verge of completing an amazing football feat.

He's watched Sheffield United in League action at ninety of the current 92 grounds!

The only two which have so far evaded him are Rochdale and Shrewsbury... and United have never played at the latter!

Alan has been a regular at Bramall Lane for the past 25 years and, in the last three or four, has hardly missed a United match — home or away.

And the significant aspect of his programme collection is that he's obtained a lot of them from actually attending the matches.

He has every United programme since 1944-45 among a collection that runs into five figures and now he wants every home programme since the club started producing them back in 1897!

"That's going to be a tall order but I'm going to give it a try. I've already got around 100 from before the Second World War and I am constantly advertising for old United programmes.

"In fact, I'll go to most lengths to get United programmes. I can remember driving down to Nottingham just to pick up one programme."

His most valuable United programme dates back to 1897-98 — a local derby clash with Sheffield

Alan Scholey smiles out from behind the pages of one of his most valuable programmes — featuring Sheffield United's derby clash with Wednesday back in 1898. Alan paid £20 for it.

Wednesday in the season United won the First Division Championship.

"I paid about £20 for that programme, but probably the most valuable one in my collection is Manchester United's European Cup tie away to Red Star Belgrade on the night of the Munich Air Disaster."

He also has every Cup Final programme since 1947, plus the 1925 and 1936 Finals which featured United. They beat Cardiff 1-0 in the 1925 Final, but lost to Arsenal 1-0 11 years later.

Alan only revived his interest in programmes six years ago when his son began following the fortunes of the 'Blades'.

"I had kept all my programmes from the sixties and seventies and when my son began collecting then it rekindled my interest," he explains.

And Alan goes to considerable lengths to make certain his programmes remain in mint condition.

"When I go to matches, particularly away from home, I always make certain that I'm there quite a while before kick-off to make sure I get a programme.

"In the lower divisions, you can't be guaranteed a programme if you get there close to kick-off.

"I always take an envelope and a piece of stiff card with me. I buy the programme, put it in the envelope with the card to prevent it bending, and take it back to my car before I go through the turnstiles."

Oh, and by the way, he whispered that he also has every Sheffield Wednesday home programme since 1944. "I've got no interest in the club, but I just enjoy collecting programmes."

If you can help Alan with any pre-war United programmes then you can write to him at 18 Hartington Avenue, Sheffield.

On tour

A GROUP of football statisticians are planning to visit 32 Football League grounds within the space of five days without seeing a ball kicked.

They are all members of The Association of Football Statisticians who embark later this month on their fourth annual tour of soccer grounds.

Explains secretary Ray Spiller: "The main purpose of these tours is so we can see behind the scenes of the clubs and take photographs — something which is impossible on match days."

This year's tour takes in parts of Wales, the West Country and London, starting at Swansea on July 18 and ending at Wembley Stadium the following Friday afternoon.

REVEALING our Fourth Division 'Matchman of the Year' award for 1982-83. The award is based on marks for League performances for one club taken from our exclusive 'Match Facts' section.

Steve Fox — 'Matchman of the Year' in the Fourth Division last season as he helped Port Vale to promotion.

Scunthorpe duo Les Hunter (above) and Steve Cammack — finished joint sixth in our top twenty table.

PORT VALE'S Steve Fox, the fleet-footed winger given away by Wrexham last year, was a runaway winner of the Match Weekly Fourth Division 'Matchman of the Year' award for last season.

Ironically, while Steve, a former £90,000 signing from Birmingham, was leading Vale's charge from Division Four, his old club were going past him in the opposite direction.

When the diminutive forward was signed by manager John McGrath last October, he appealed to the Vale fans not to compare him with Mark Chamberlain, the popular youngster who had moved on to greater things with Stoke and subsequently England.

But if he did feel the pressure of bearing that mantle, he didn't allow his performances to suffer judging by his average rating of 7.48.

He was confident when he joined that Vale would achieve promotion, and with him supplying the cannon fodder for the likes of Bob Newton, Ernie Moss and Jim Steel, he played a significant part in bringing success to Vale Park.

His impressive mark left him well clear of three strikers, including Blackpool's Dave Bamber who will be playing in the big time next season with Coventry City.

Although Dave missed twenty games through injury, new Coventry boss Bobby Gould obviously saw enough potential to send struggling Blackpool a £50,000 cheque.

He scored ten League goals in 26 matches last season and was also the club's top scorer the previous season with 15.

Sharing third place were Stockport's Mike Quinn and York's Keith Walwyn who were among the Division's leading scorers last season.

Mike marked his first season at Edgeley Park by scoring 24 League goals ... nearly half his side's total, while former Chesterfield striker Keith was York's leading marksman for the second successive season.

The striking stranglehold was broken by Peterborough's young midfield player Micky Gynn whose rating of 7.09 earned him fifth place and a spot in our 'Match

Weekly' team for the second successive season.

Then came Scunthorpe pair Steve Cammack, their top scorer, and kingpin defender Les Hunter who both played important parts in the club's promotion success.

Les, another former Chesterfield player, was the division's top defender, while York City's experienced Roger Jones was the leading goalkeeper.

MY SURVEY shows just how unfair 'Match of the Day' is. In League games, the following First Division teams received these numbers of screenings: Liverpool 10, Nottingham Forest 7, Ipswich 6, Southampton 6.

While at the other end of the scale, it was: Sunderland, Notts County and West Brom one each.

In the Second Division, Wolves hogged all the limelight, appearing five times. Eight Second Division teams didn't figure in the programme at all!

The most pathetic result of my survey must have been that Millwall — nearly relegated to the Fourth Division — were screened more than West Brom, Notts County and Sunderland.

Just how do the BBC decide which clubs merit TV coverage? Dale Collett (14), Weston Colville, Cambs.

AT a match between Swansea and Manchester United, Gordon McQueen autographed a piece of paper for me. I treasured it.

But one of my family thought it was a piece of scrap paper and threw it out. There was uproar.

Unknown to me, my mother wrote to United and a week later the club sent me autographs for the whole team plus a team photograph. I was delighted. Thanks, Man United, you've got a fan for life.

Mark Phillips, Swansea, West Glamorgan.

Eddie Gray — he can lead Leeds back to the top next season.

MANCHESTER CITY, Newcastle and Fulham can take a back seat... Leeds will be the toast of the Second Division next season.

After a year's experience of the hard slog of Division Two football, Leeds are well equipped to make the jump back into the top flight.

They have experienced players like David Harvey and Frank Gray, exciting youngsters like John Sheridan and Neil Aspin, skilful signings like Andy Ritchie and John Donnelly plus the expected return of wing wizard Peter Barnes from Spain.

Under the guidance of Eddie Gray, and with United's massive travelling support, the signs point to a victorious season for the Elland Road club.

ALTHOUGH I have been a great fan of your magazine for 3½ years, I'm unhappy about the way 'Treasure Trail' is conducted.

On Thursday June 16, I must have phoned about 20 times between 4.30 and 5.30 pm to give the answer to the 'Mystery Man' but my phone lines were always engaged from Bristol to Peterborough.

Surely this phone-in system of answers gives a better chance to people living in and around Peterborough who don't have to use STD dialling. Wouldn't it be better if we used the postal service to provide the answer? Julian Roach (14), Plympton, Plymouth.

● THE first week of 'Treasure Trail' phone-ins did produce a headache. Apparently British Telecom couldn't handle all the calls into Peterborough. That's why we switched to the postal service the following week. But phone-ins are obviously very popular so we will be looking into the possibility of providing a telephone service — such as on BBC's 'Swap Shop' — in the near future.

I KNOW it's a little late to write about the Cup Final, but I've been busy with exams.

My point concerns Brighton skipper Steve Foster, who was banned for the first match but returned to the side for the replay. I was very disappointed with his unsporting gesture to the crowd after Manchester United had coasted into a 3-0 lead.

Maybe he was provoked by a section of the crowd singing 'Steve Foster, what a difference you have made', but a professional player should be able to control his actions.

Foster should take a look at goalkeepers, who often get unmerciful 'stick' from the crowd but very rarely resort to gestures. Omar Issawi (16), Ahmadi, Kuwait.

● DON'T be too hard on Steve ... he had to show the crowd he was still on the pitch!

I HAVE just started ordering 'Match' from my newsagent after previously taking another soccer weekly.

The reason I switched to 'Match' was because of your up-to-date news, pictures and the amazing amount of competitions packed into the magazine. I just wish I'd started reading 'Match' sooner. Simon Golch (14), Churchdown, Gloucester.

GOLDEN GOOF

"It was more of a 'Gordon Goof' when this newspaper report suggested that England quick bowler Norman Cowans was playing football for England ..." says Tony Green of Halifax.

Another man involved in what is generally a heated midfield battle is Aston Villa's Norman Cowans, who was far from satisfied with his game against Northern Ireland.

Phil Neal — under fire.

SURELY Phil Neal's international days are numbered.

After the Liverpool full-back's disastrous Australian tour, England should be looking for a talented right-back to replace him.

Phil scored an own goal to provide the Aussies with an equaliser in the third match of the tour. He rarely plays well and is just keeping talented players like Viv Anderson and Kenny Swain waiting in the wings. Piers Davies, Reading, Berks.

● MAYBE Phil dropped a clanger against the Aussies, but he's had a great season with Liverpool and provided England with sterling service over the years. It would be hasty to write him off just yet.

HOW ridiculous it was of England and Scotland to arrange close-season international tours to Australia and Canada.

What can be gained by playing the likes of the Aussies and Canadians — who have no position in terms of world football?

No wonder our club sides refuse to release their best players for such meaningless games when they can be of more use on their respective club tours.

Stephen Brennan, Newcastle-upon-Tyne.

● THE idea was, I suppose, to help promote the game in those countries by showing how good our international sides were. But while Scotland lived up to their reputations in Canada, England did little to enhance theirs Down Under.

ALTHOUGH my favourite team, Crystal Palace, were nearly relegated from the Second Division last season, I have to admire the way manager Alan Mullery refused to reach for the cheque book.

He managed to sign seven players — Gary Locke, Ally Brown, Henry Hughton, Chris Jones, Ian Edwards and, recently, George Wood on free transfers and exchanged Neil Smillie for Gary Williams.

If more teams followed Mullery's astute example, football wouldn't be in such deep financial problems. Palace fan, Poole, Dorset.

● IF MULLERY had produced a successful team without spending a penny, your point would have been valid.

ON BEHALF of Tottenham fans everywhere, I'd like to wish Glenn Hoddle, his wife and daughter all the best when they leave England.

Glenn will be missed when he eventually signs for a foreign club, but I'm sure Glenn's skill will be much appreciated by his new fans and I hope he returns to England soon.

Liz Jones (16), Bromborough, Merseyside.

I THINK that the backlog of fixtures that hit soccer following a bad winter could be avoided if soccer adopts a new points system.

If three points were awarded for a win, two for a draw and one for a postponed (now abandoned) game, then the onus would be on teams to get matches played if they didn't want to drop points.

Then teams would be keener to instal pitch heating systems or artificial surfaces (such as at Queen's Park Rangers) in an effort to make sure their game goes ahead. At the moment, clubs have no incentive to try and combat the weather and provide regular entertainment for the fans.

David Peters, Shipley, West Yorkshire.

HELLO, hello, hello ... it's a coincidence that three ex-players — Peter Springett (Barnsley), Neil Freeman (Northampton) and John Walker (Southend) — are serving with the police force now they have finished their playing careers. Terry King (15), Southend-on-Sea, Essex.

● A SORT of Kop End, would you say?

I'D like 'Match' to print my marriage proposal to Norman Whiteside.

Norman should know that I'm extremely pretty, a devoted fan of Manchester United and I have a wedding dress that I don't know what to do with.

If Norman refuses me, I shall become a fan of Catanzaro (bottom of the Italian First Division) which is worse than committing suicide. Mary Tsioga, Kifissia, Athens, Greece.

I'D like to thank the players and staff at Leicester City for a thrilling season.

After a disappointing start, Leicester were totally written off, but Gordon Milne's men forced their way back into the promotion hunt with an incredible series of results.

I believe that if Leicester show the same determination in the First Division next season, they can be up in the top rank. Steven Brydges (12), Oadby, Leicestershire.

MEXICAN MISTAKE

WINNER

SURELY FIFA have made a mistake in allowing Mexico to host the 1986 World Cup Finals.

This fact is highlighted by the trouble during and after the Mexico v Scotland youth game in the Aztec Stadium when Neale Cooper was hit on the head by a bottle.

If this is how Mexicans react to their youth team being beaten, how on earth will they behave if their senior side loses?

Surely it would be more sensible to switch the World Cup Finals to America, who have the money and excellent facilities to make the tournament a great success.

Neil Urquhart, Glenrothes, Fife, Scotland.

● YOU know the Finals would be a great success in the States, I know it would and so does most of the football world. But, unfortunately, FIFA doesn't ...

ZICO FEVER

Hero's welcome for Brazil ace

UDINESE fans turned out in their thousands to give Brazilian star Zico a hero's welcome as he arrived to sign a two-year contract with the Italian First Division club.

The talented striker is reported to have signed for a staggering fee of around £3 million, but the deal has yet to be formally confirmed.

Like the deal which collapsed between Naples and Aston Villa's England international Gordon Cowans, Zico's move is subject to the unpredictability of the Italian transfer market.

The World Cup star is likely to be joined in Italy by international team-mate Toninho Cerezo, who is set to sign for First Division Roma for around £2 million.

Roma have also been trying to lure Brazilian captain Socrates, but he has turned down the chance of a big-money move to the new Italian League Champions.

Zico — hero's welcome in Italy.

Negotiations between Socrates and Roma took place in Basle while Brazil were on tour.

But the two sons of Roma president Dino Viola returned from Switzerland saying that the financial requirements of Socrates and his club Corinthians were too high and totally unacceptable.

It is believed that Corinthians, like Zico's Brazilian club Flamengo, were asking for a fee in the region of £3 million.

Socrates said himself the financial requirements were not a priority and that the deal collapsed for other reasons.

He said: "There were plenty of other things to consider in the contract... conditions of work, type of releases from the contract — and so on. These are more important than money."

CARLOS UNDER FIRE

BRAZILIAN football's reputation dipped to an unexpected new low with their disappointing performances on tour in Europe.

Team manager Carlos Parreira took a lot of criticism for his side's negative approach but, without star names like Zico, Falcao and Junior, he said: "I'm not too displeased by the way the tour turned out."

But he added: "We must learn to ally our skills with hard work and better defensive play if we are to get results."

After their 4-0 win over Portugal in the opening game of the tour the Brazilians never managed to lift themselves to the magical heights seen in Spain last summer.

They were held to a 1-1 draw in Wales, won 2-1 in Switzerland and drew 3-3 in Sweden where star winger Eder was sent off following an ugly incident with Swedish defender Erlandsson.

Throughout the tour, the Brazilians needed late goals to snatch results.

THE Hungarian Football Federation have allowed national team manager Kalman Meszoly to rejoin Vasas as manager of the Budapest club.

Meszoly (41) was given a new, four-year contract as national team manager after last year's

■ CESAR Luis Menotti, the man who led Argentina to World Cup glory in 1978, collected his first domestic trophy since taking over at Barcelona when his team lifted the Spanish Cup.

Barcelona's 2-1 victory over Real Madrid in front of 45,000 fans in Zaragoza's World Cup stadium, was inspired by the Argentinian star Diego Maradona, who created both goals for the former Atletico Madrid player Marcos.

■ ROMA centre forward Roberto Pruzzo looks set to join Florence in an exchange deal involving Italian international Francesco Graziani. Should the deal go through Pruzzo will team up with Argentinian Daniel Passarella and Italian midfielder Giancarlo Antognoni.

World Cup Finals in Spain where Hungary failed to qualify for the second round.

But, on the eve of the European Championship game against Luxembourg in April, Meszoly told the national federation he wanted to quit, but would see out the rest of the season.

Meszoly, who quit allegedly because his position was being undermined by star players, replaces Rudolph Illovsky — another national team supremo — as manager of Vasas.

■ HIDDEN away amongst the wealth of summer signings for Juventus is a young 24-year-old Economics student Benjamin Vignola, of Avellino, a forward as famous for his low pulse rate of 46 as for his football.

NEWCASTLE'S record signing John Trewick could be coming to the end of his turbulent career at St James' Park.

The £250,000 buy from West Brom says: "Manager Arthur Cox has said that he doesn't want me — and that if another club comes in with a reasonable offer, I can go."

"If you are unwanted, there's no point hanging around. You can't tie yourself to one club," says John, who still has a year of his contract to run.

The midfielder has been out in the cold since the opening day of last season when he hobbled off the pitch with a knee ligament injury.

And while he's been on the sidelines, he's seen Newcastle sign former Liverpool and England ace Terry McDermott and Northern Ireland World Cup hero David McCreery as big-name replacements.

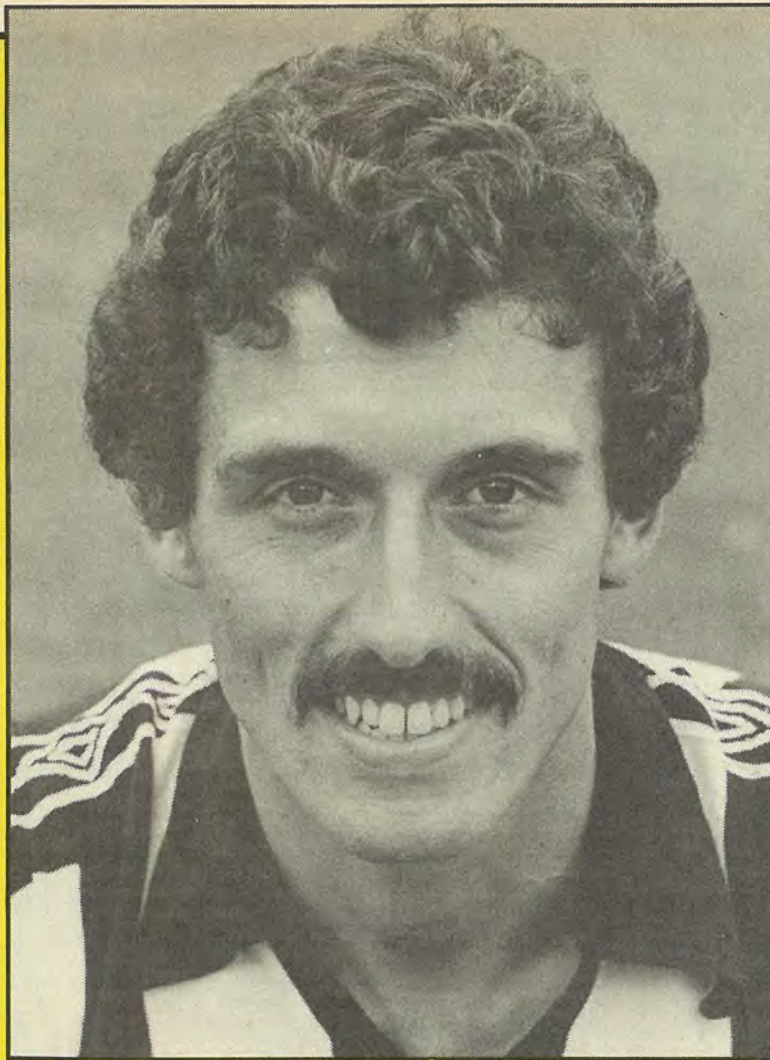

"The manager has built his midfield without me. If no other clubs come in for me, I've got to prove to him that I'm worth a place in the side."

John is prepared to battle back but he is realistic and says: "I face a very hard job. Terry, David and young Neil McDonald played very well in midfield towards the end of last season."

"I was unlucky to get injured because things had just started to happen at the club following the signings of class players like Kevin Keegan and Jeff Clarke."

"I'm sure that playing alongside the likes of Kevin and Jeff would have suited my style of play."

John admits that he's had his

TREWICK SET TO LEAVE NEWCASTLE

ups and downs since moving to the North East. "It's been disappointing. Things haven't worked out as I would have liked."

And he blames the price tag on his head for much of his trouble. He says: "Because you cost so much, people watch you all the time and are more critical. The pressures just mount up."

"The arrival of last season's star signings would have taken a lot of pressure off me and I am sure that would have been reflected in my play."

John is still confident of his ability and he says: "I'm the same player that I was at West Brom. I know I can still do a good job."

"Now I just want to play first team football again. If it happens at Newcastle, I will be delighted, if not I'm prepared to look elsewhere."

Newcastle put in a tremendous late run to finish fifth in the Second Division last season and John says: "The team let it slip with a disastrous spell during the Christmas period. That was the crucial time for us."

"That spell from January onwards was promotion form — but we had left ourselves just too much to do."

"The new signings just clicked. It takes time to knit in. You can't walk into a side and play straight away."

John is still giving his leg special treatment even though he was fully recovered in February and playing in the Newcastle reserves.

He has a special metal boot at home for weight training and he says: "I've got confidence back in the leg, but now it's just a matter of keeping the momentum going."
